Navigating Cyberspace as a Teen

Why are they drawn to such content?

- Teens are ruled by their amygdala aka lizard brain (first part to develop)
 - Associated with emotions, impulses, aggression & instinctive behaviour
- Prefrontal cortex (last to develop: mid-20s)
 - Linked to reasoning, decision-making
- Prone to social pressure

Navigating Cyberspace as a Teen

How do they find such content?

- - Algorithms by social media platforms
- - Attention economy: the more time you spend on social media, the more ads can be shown to you

Social Connections and Support

Social media allows youths to connect with others who share common interests and experiences from all over the world. Online social support can also buffer against stress and anxiety for youths while fostering their social and emotional resilience.

Learn More About the World

Social media can be a valuable source of information and provide platforms to share a variety of views on a wide range of topics and social issues. This can offer opportunities for youths to develop greater awareness of viewpoints beyond their own.

Creativity and Self-Expression

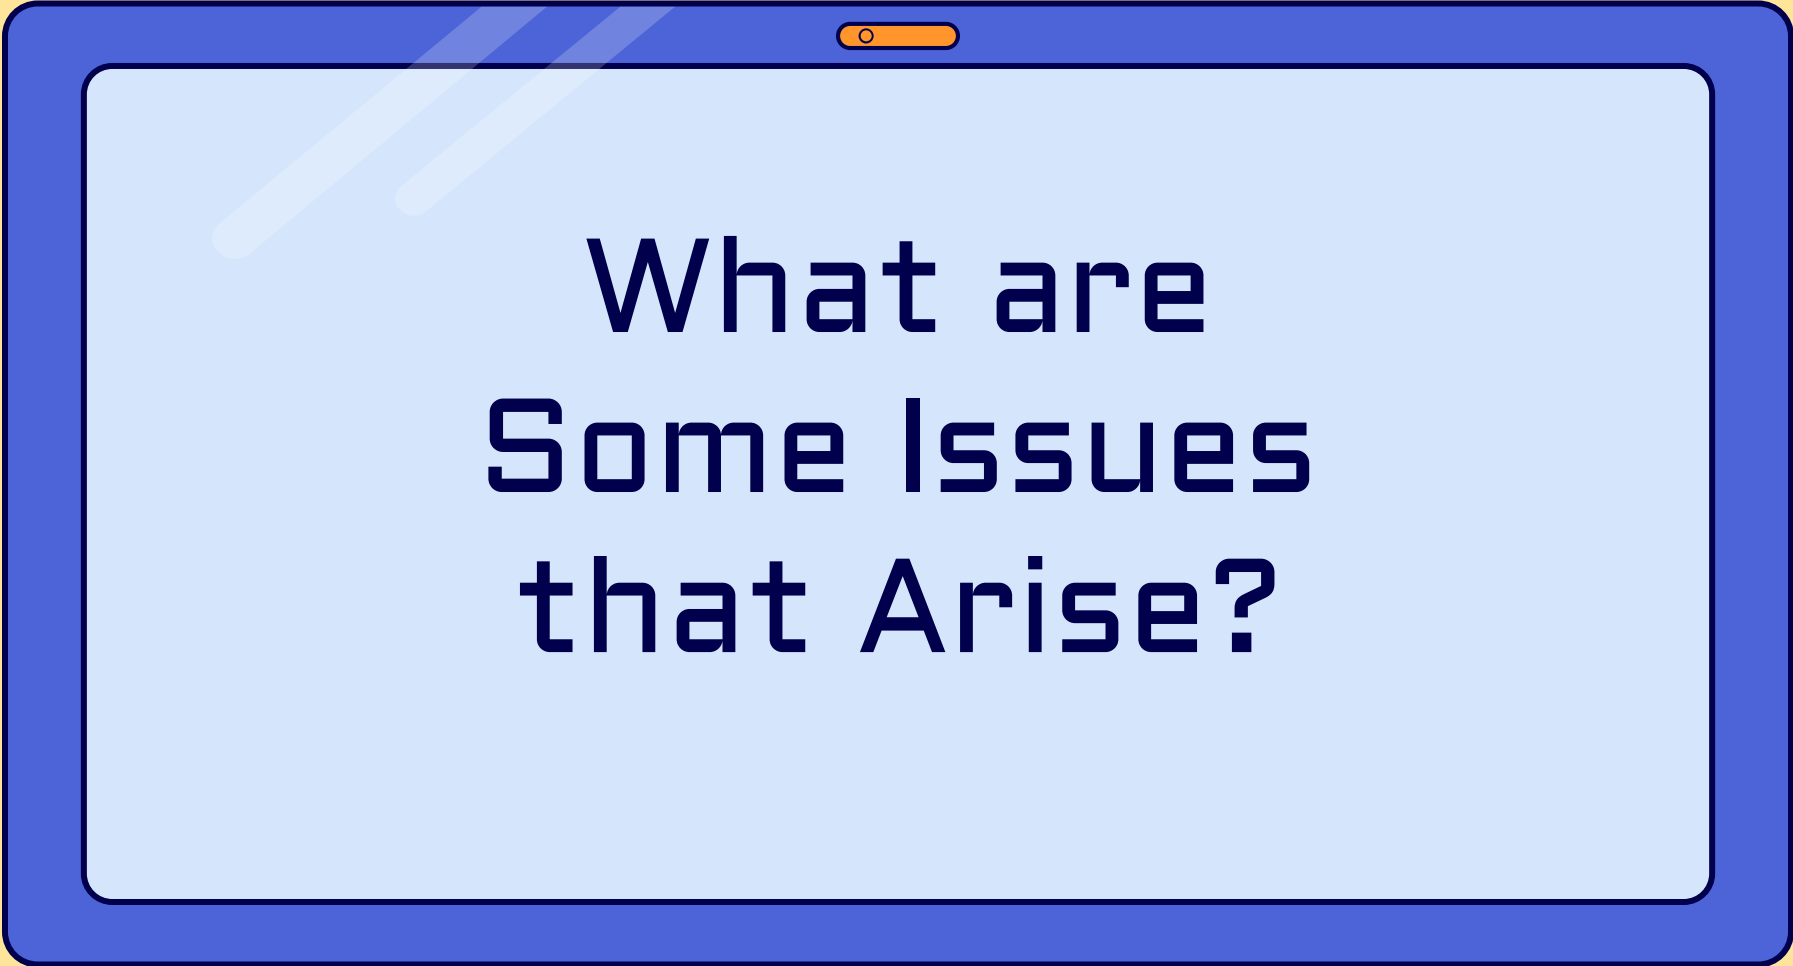

Social media allows youths to express themselves freely. This empowers them to develop their skills, receive validation and gain recognition for their talents, which build confidence and develop their self-identity.

Entertainment

Social media is full of creative and engaging content which can be a good source of entertainment and relaxation.

What are Some Issues that Arise?

Doomscrolling and Its Consequences

Doomscrolling means reading large amounts of distressing news online. It may result in:

- Increased anxiety and stress
- Worsened emotional well-being
- Poor sleep quality

Lower Self-Esteem

On social media, people usually show highly curated and idealised photos or videos of themselves, which may not be a true reflection of their daily lives. Constant exposure to such content can make youths feel bad about themselves as they struggle to meet such unrealistic standards.

Limited Perspectives

With social media's algorithms, youths are often fed content that matches their interests in order to keep them engaged online. As such, they may not be exposed to multiple perspectives and information that could broaden their understanding and help them develop more balanced viewpoints.

Insufficient Sleep

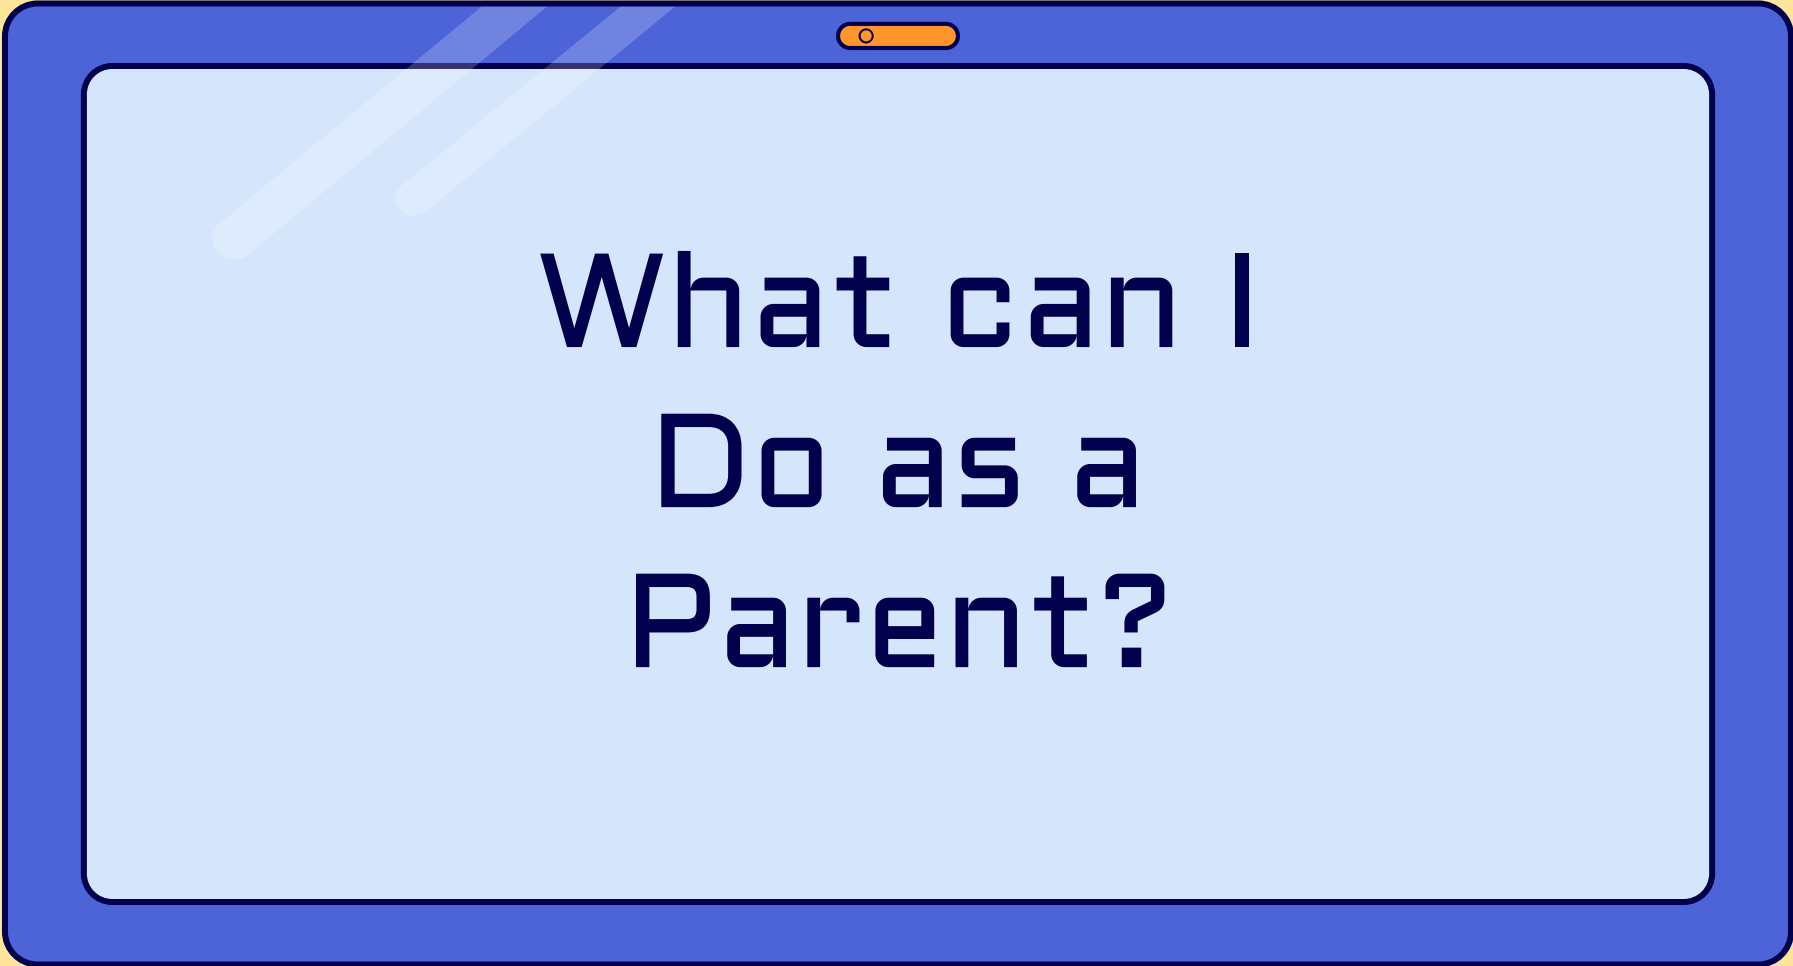

Youths may find it difficult to disengage from social media at night due to anxiety about missing out on something interesting or exciting that others might be experiencing.

Risk of Exposure to Cyberbullying

Cyberbullying may be more common on social media due to anonymity, resulting in significant distress and potentially poorer mental health in affected youths.

If your child isn't on social media yet

Consider the following before deciding if he/she is ready:

- Is my child especially vulnerable to online harms?
- Does my child have the required maturity and resilience to manage potentially negative online social interactions?
- Does my child listen to advice and follow rules?
- Is my child aware of the risks, and does he/she have strategies for managing them?
- Will my child come to me with any problems they encounter online?

If your child is already on social media

Ensure the following steps:

- Have frequent conversations with your child about what he/she is viewing
- Educate him/her about online safety
- Learn parental control tools you can use to keep track of your child's usage of social media
- Discuss boundaries with your child

If your child is already

Try the following:

- Change the algorithm by scrolling about positive messages to social media
- Introduce them to other activities doing, e.g. outdoor activities

Friendly reminders:

Celebrate your progress, no matter how small

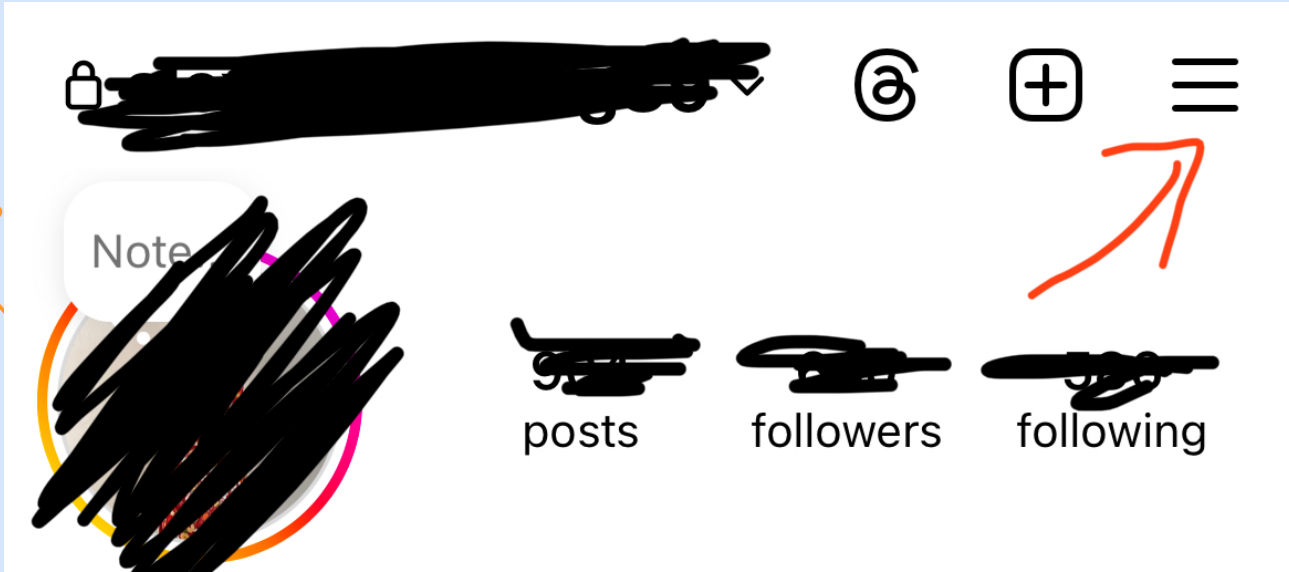

Plant seeds of kindness wherever you go

You are the main character of your story

Nobody's perfect. We're all a work in progress

You deserve love, rest, joy, and healing
